

From the Stewardship Chair: We would like to encourage others with stories of people that have found unique ways to give thanks for all of the blessings that God has given them. Two of these people are Joe and Angela Lukens, who have both been extremely involved in the congregation in various ways. We asked them a few questions about how and why they serve here at ULu.

1. Why do you call ULu your church home?

First and foremost, ULu is firmly grounded in the Word of God, teaching the truth of the Bible in its entirety—no exceptions! God's Word is all we have to hold on to in this fallen world, and ULu ensures we embrace it fully. Additionally, ULu offers truly unique opportunities for student involvement (and for non-students as well, like Angela. Rather than simply following the lead of more experienced parishioners, we are given the chance to lead ourselves; the work involved is therefore much greater, but so is the prospect for Christian growth.

2. What is something that you and Joe are passionate about at ULu?

Angela is particularly passionate about the LWML women's group and its involvement in worldwide missions. Joe enjoys using the resources God has given us at ULu for reaching out to the community in social ministry activities.

3. How has your giving back brought you both closer to God? We have both been humbled to see Christ at work. Of course, this is most obvious when we can see a direct positive impact—be it a truckload of food for those in need, or a large group of students enjoying food and fellowship together. Yet perhaps ironically the greatest personal growth has actually occurred with events that would be considered less successful, at least in terms of statistics such as attendance or donations. Such events teach the importance of dedicating time and energy to wherever God has called you, regardless of the results. Our time at ULu has taught us to focus on the mission, not the outcome; God will take care of that.
